PDX Zines is a tool to find places to read, look at, buy or sell zines in Portland, Oregon. We put it together because it seemed like the list wasn't all in one place already, and because librarians believe in sharing. You are holding our ninth edition, revised and expanded.

PDX Zines was made with lots of tape, a photocopy machine, and a stapler. The cover uses Feisty McShitty and handwritten letters. Feisty McShitty is a typeface originally designed by the American graphic artist and zinester Sean Tejaratchi; this version is from a 1997 specimen sheet from Craphound No. 5. Hearts, Hands, Eyes. The inside text uses Aharoni and Arial Narrow, both from the computer. This edition features insect illustrations selected from the library's collection of clip art books.

We'd love your suggestions – email them to us at zines@multcolib.org. Or take a look at our fabu website, www.multcolib.org/books/zines/

"What is a zine? (Pronounced like magazine without the maga) a zine is an independently created publication. The contents are personal experiences and stories, political ideologies, music related writing, gardening tips, travel stories, comics, photography, or anything you like. Zines can be put together by one person or a group of people and they are usually photocopied."
